

To Dale The Short

Today is Dale's birthday.
We wish him many more.
If he was a Scotchman,
He'd be part of the lore.
We're glad "The Dale" is part of the clan
He's really a straight and tall man.
In his old age.
He's an OK sort.
I said he is tall,
But he still comes up Short.

As A Lad

When I was a lad I made history
As a barley cooker in a 'stillery.
I cooked it well and never let it burn,
And I scrubbed out all the tanks when it was my turn.
Chorus;
He scrubbed the tanks so well you see,
That now he is the owner of the 'stillery
I made the "Scotch" that got better with age.
Then I became "Lord Jim" with a very good wage.
Now I own a castle and I'm often seen
In London town with the King and Queen

The Hero?

Dameon was an exceptional guy,
He convinced the King that he could fly
It's a good thing that he was healthy and fit,
He was saved when he landed in a pile of—dung

Collection of Poems

by

Jim Ackley

These were written while on trips with Thelma and Alumnae members of Phi Mu Fraternity and sponsored by the Foundation during 1991-2006